

Major Changes to Data Protection Law for all Schools and Colleges Time is ticking – prepare NOW to ensure full legal compliance by the 2018 deadline

- Understand current and future DP requirements for schools and colleges
- Ensure your action plan for the 2018 GDPR is watertight, enforceable and future-ready
- Avoid increased fines under the GDPR, criminal and civil sanctions, adverse publicity and reputational damage

Thu 12th October 2017

Ringwood

Ringwood Academy

In 2018, the new General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) will significantly change the rules for handling data in all schools and colleges. This will affect how data is collected, used and shared.

Our expert trainer, Naomi Korn, will guide you through what this means for your school/college, how you should prepare for the changes and how to avoid increased fines by providing evidence of compliance.

The day will be refreshingly interactive, practical and PowerPoint-free - backed up by training materials that require virtually no note-taking and can be reproduced, re-used and adapted once back in school/college.

- Know what types of personal data and associated activities are covered by Data Protection legislation – both now and under the 2018 changes
- Understand how the 2018 changes will impact on your school/college
- Ensure and maintain full compliance with all present and future DP regulations
- Understand how data protection is enforced, and the risks of non-compliance
- Raise data protection awareness amongst school/college staff
- Know your rights, your obligations and who is responsible for what
- Get answers to your own data protection queries from our expert

“

Fantastic training today. Naomi has truly been the best trainer I have ever had

”

Naomi Korn is Managing Director of NKCC, one of the UK's leading specialist Information Law consultancies. Working in partnership with Content Clear, a specialist provider of data protection training and consultancy, and other Information Law experts, NKCC provides data protection, copyright, licensing and other Information Law services and training. Naomi has extensive experience of advising schools and colleges on Information Law issues, and her clients also include the British Council, NHS England, The Royal Academy of Arts, the Museum of London, the Imperial War Museum and the Wellcome Trust. Naomi led the reform of the UK's copyright laws on behalf of the cultural heritage sector, which resulted in new UK exceptions to copyright in 2014. She has also regularly represented the interests of the sector to UK Government Ministers, Government officials and on Government advisory groups. Naomi is a Trustee of CILIP and a visiting lecturer at City University, University College London and Kingston University. Colleagues appreciate Naomi's warm and empathic training style, and she is well known for her ability to make complex and constantly evolving issues easy to understand, even for those with little previous experience. To find out more about Naomi, please visit her website www.naomikorn.com

We're delighted to be working in collaboration with Ringwood Academy, who will be hosting the event. This means that we're able to offer our same high quality training whilst passing on a significant discount directly to delegates. The course fee will be £169 + vat (reduced from £255 + vat).

